

Affiliate Marketing

This list is by no means an all-inclusive one. That is, there are thousands of different affiliate marketing programs out there -- some more well-known than others. For example, I'm an affiliate for several bloggers with online courses. You've probably never heard of them, but they're a good source of income for me each month. Why? Because these targeted programs fit in well with my blog since they teach people skills that can be used to work from home. And, chances are, you'll come across similar opportunities to promote products that are perfect for your niche.

In addition to these 50 sites listed here, it's a good idea to check your favorite businesses and brands to see if they have affiliate marketing programs. Chances are, they will. A Google search with your niche + affiliate program can also help you locate relevant affiliate opportunities.

Let's say you blogged about pets -- you share everything from cute moments with kittens to advice on keeping your pet flea-free in the summer months. Great!

In Google you would search for "pets + affiliate programs." The screenshot to the left is what you would expect to find. And, as you can see, there are no shortage of affiliate programs that will likely fit in perfectly with your pet blog! Once you sign up for these programs, you can check their terms to see if you can share affiliate links on social media. Otherwise, consider writing a high-quality blog post that promoted the product or service -- don't forget to include the required FTC disclosure!

Whatever your niche is, there's almost always smaller affiliate programs you should join -- whether it's an online boutique for fashion bloggers to a subscription box service for food bloggers, do yourself a favor and find these smaller programs. They can lead to a huge chunk of income every month!

While I highly recommend tracking down and signing up for niche-related affiliate programs, it's also a good idea to familiarize yourself with the biggest names in affiliate marketing, too. Keep in mind, these programs aren't for everyone. And you probably shouldn't sign up for each and every one. But, it's still worth knowing some of the established and up and coming affiliate networks out there.

So, there you have it. Remember, only sign up for affiliate programs you can stand behind. You don't want to suggest a product that doesn't make sense for you and your blog or one that is questionable as far as quality! And don't discount small programs -- they can really pay off big time.

Don't have a website or a blog? No problem! Check out this article I wrote for The Work at Home Woman -- How to Make Money with Affiliate Marketing without Maintaining a Website or Blog.
